LIGHT RECEIPTS OVER WEEK-END

MACKEREL NETTERS WERE OUT,
BUT NONE OF THE FLEET
FOUND FISH.

Arrivals of fresh fish since Saturday's market, were few, being confined to three draggers, one from off-shore with a small catch and the other two from the shore. Mackerel netters were out last night, but practically none of the boats took fish, and those that did only had a handful and not enough to report. A large cargo of salt fish from the Faro Islands, in excess of 3,000,000 pounds, which has been expected here since Saturday for the Gorton-Pew Fisheries Company, had not arrived at noon today. Gill netters found good fishing Saturday and yesterday, several nice fares of pollock being landed at the splitters.

N. F. Codfish.

Some of the codfish markets are reported to have shown weakness, whilst others are steady. As November and December are usually the best months of the year for dried codfish in European markets, it is possible that any anticipated decline has been brought about by over supplies. Norway and Iceland are aggressive competitors in Oporto yet that market sustains a favorable demand for Newfoundland. The great trouble seems to be that we

FOURTEEN BEAM TRAWLERS AT HUB

TOTAL FLEET OF 39 THIS MORN-NING WITH RECEIPTS OF 1,800,000 LBS.

Dealers at the Boston fish pier were well supplied with nearly all varieties of fresh fish this morning when a fleet of 39 vessels brought their cargoes in for disposal. There were 14 beam trawlers in the assembly, the largest numbers of steamers ever to arrive on a single morning. Total receipts were 1,600,000 pounds of groundfish, 240,000 pounds of mixed fish, 4000 pounds of mackerel and 1000 pounds of halibut. The mackerel were taken in the drag of str. Sea Hawk.

MACKEREL CATCH

of Highland light.
In the corresponding week last year the netters were quite successful and landed 239,850 pounds. They were caught 15 miles southeast of Cape Ann and sold for 10 to 15 cents per pound. The demand for salt mackerel is quiet. A shipment of Irish salt mackerel was received at Boston last week. They comprised mostly 3's, some 4's and a few 2's.

Catch To Date.

The total catch of mackerel to date has been 42,511,470 pounds of fresh and 1464 barrels of salt mackerel; in 1928, it was 29,609,400 pounds of fresh and 352 barrels of salt mackerel; in 1927, 37,924,050 pounds of fresh and 1002 barrels of salt mackerel; in 1926, 45,444,300 pounds of fresh and 5380 barrels of salt mackerel.

LONE DRAGGER SOLE ARRIVAL

NONE OF THE MACKEREL FLEET WERE REPORTED OUT LAST NIGHT.

There was a decided scarcity of fresh fish in port this morning, for none of the shore boats or mackerel netters were out last night. The lone arrival of the morning was the off-shore dragger Amelia M. Pereira, with a small fare of haddock for the General Seafoods Corporation. Gill netters fishing yesterday brought in a fair amount of fish, not all of the boats being out.

SHORT STORY HERE TODAY

TWO DRAGGERS ONLY ARRIVALS
REPORTED IN SINCE YESTERDAY.

Fish were a scarce edible here this morning, for the only arrivals reported since yesterday, not counting the pollock fares landed by gill netters, were two draggers. One of them came from off-shore in time for the crew to be home for Thanksgiving, and the other was a small shore dragger with 4000 pounds of mixed groundfish.

The Portland Fish Company took out six trips, Willard Daggett, four, and the Dirigo Fish Company two.

Trawler Disabled.

Disabled through the breaking down of her engine, the fishing steamer Fish Hawk was assisted into port yesterday by the Coast Guard cutter Tascara, which fell in with her off Nantucket. In Boston lower harbor, the convoy was met by the Ross tug Cornelia, which took the crippled fisher in tow and brought her to the Boston Fish pier.

The Fish Hawk, commanded by Capt. Dennis Hayes, had been out 10 days to the South Channel and was on the way home when the breakdown occurred.

BAKER'S DOZEN AT HUB TODAY

RECEIPTS TOTAL 425,000 POUNDS—

TWO MORE HUB TRAWLERS READY

At Bath, Me., next Saturday, two more Diesel trawlers for the Boston fishing fleet are to be launched. The Flow, built for the Bay State Fishing Company, and a sister of the Abb, now outfitting at Bath, for her maiden trip, will go overboard without any special ceremony and be formally turned over to a representative of the owners. After a trial, the Flow will come to Boston for equipment and within a few weeks will take her place in the fleet.

The second is the Notre Dame, constructed to the order of the Atlantic & Pacific Fish Company, of Boston, and a number of invited guests will witness her launching. She is the fourth unit in the fleet, the others also bearing names of Catholic institutions of learning, the Boston College, Holy Cross and Georgetown. A fifth, to be called Fordham, is rapidly nearing

The new dragger Edith and Elinor, Capt. Simon Theriault, is at Boston this morning, fresh from her maiden trip. She brings to port on this first occasion, the largest fare of fish landed by a dragger her size this season, and one of the largest ever caught by a craft her size in the same line of fishing. Hauling for 86,000 pounds of fresh fish, the boat will, without a question, weigh out considerably more than that. Accompanying Capt. Theriault on the trip was Capt. Iver Carlson, two old water-front pals, who went looking for fish and found them.
